HONGKONG, JANUARY 7TH, 1888.

THE Chinese petition against the Public Health Bill fairly sets out the Chinese objections to that measure. Exception may, however, be taken to the style in which it has been drafted. It is about time that the threadbare reference to Captain ELLIOTT'S proclamation was dropped. The petitioners say:—"When this Colony was founded, the Queen of England not only strove to treat Her subjects at home with gentleness, but kindly remembered those that were far from Her, and purposely sent out here Captain ELLIOTT and Mr. BREMNER, with Her instructions kindly to encourage the people to come to this Colony, and to do their utmost to make the new-comers comfortable. These two officials faithfully carried out Her intentions, and silently spread the beneficial influence of Her [illegible] by which all Chinese residents shall be protected, and their own customs and habits, as well as their notions of propriety, will be allowed to remain unchanged, and that within the threshold of their houses, no one will dare to interfere with them." The pledges here given have been fulfilled in the past and will be fulfilled in the future. All that the proclamation amounted to was a guarantee of good government with respect for native customs. It did not mean that there was to be no progress or change, nor did the phrase that within the threshold of their houses no one would dare to interfere with the Chinese residents mean that the jurisdiction of the Government was to be confined to the streets. To bring forward such a proclamation in connection with the Public Health Bill is calculated to make the petitioners look ridiculous, and so injure their cause. The oriental imagery of language introduced in some parts of the petition might also very well have been toned down, and the references to the "brotherly feeling" of the Secretary of State and the desire of the official members of Council to be "hard upon your petitioners" might with advantage have been omitted. However mistaken the action of the officials was, it was certainly not dictated by any desire to be hard upon the Chinese, nor do the Chinese think it was. The introduction of this phrase was no doubt an error on the part of the draughtsman, and the signers, thinking the draughtsman knew best, what to say, signed without giving the text any very close scrutiny.

The first objection to the Bill raised by the petitioners is with reference to common lodging houses. It cannot, we think, be maintained that common lodging houses shall be exempt from regulation. The definition of such a house given in the Bill is "Any house or part thereof where persons are housed, not being members of the same family, at an amount not exceeding five cents a day or one dollar a month for each person." People who have to take lodgings on these terms are not in a position to pick and choose, and it is necessary that the places where they spend their nights should be subject to inspection, not only for their own protection, but the protection of the community, for lodging houses are very liable to become disseminators of infectious disease. What conditions the regulations should impose is of course another matter, but the principle of regulating common lodging houses is in itself unassailable. The next objections taken in the petition refer to the mode of electing the members of the Sanitary Board and appointing the Chairman, Vice-Chairman, and Secretary of the Board, matters about which we believe the Chinese with few exceptions are perfectly indifferent. We then come to the objection to the prohibition of letting waste water into the side channels. If only innocuous water were thrown into the side channels the objection would have some force, but it is important that the surface drains, not intended for the conveyance of sewage, should not be polluted by garbage and excretal matter, and it would be difficult to prevent this by any measure short of the prohibition contained in the Bill.

The objection to section 17 is one of the most forcible contained in the petition. The petitioners say that what the Chinese most hate is that strangers should come and disturb their private residences, and see their women folk; that Chinese women are inexperienced, illiterate, and of weak nerves; that the women would be alarmed if an inspecting officer came when here was no man at home; and, further, that robbers, thieves, and vagabonds would personate inspecting officers, pretend to inspect the houses, and take the opportunity to commit rape, robbery, or theft; and that even among the officers themselves, it is impossible to say that every one of them will not presume on his power, and take advantage of it to accomplish improper designs. The phrase quoted in the earlier part of the petition from Captain ELLIOTT'S proclamation as to the Chinese not being interfered with within the threshold of their houses was simply a rough translation of the saying that an Englishman's house is his castle, and that a Chinaman's would be the same. The doctrine is one which should be steadfastly maintained in its main lines. It is certain that in England wholesale powers of inspection of private houses would not be allowed the authorities, nor should they be here. Cases may occur where an inspection is desirable, but it should only be allowed where there is well founded suspicion of insanitary conditions, and attended by the same limitations and formalities as search warrants in criminal cases. It would be intolerable to any community, and more so to an oriental than a European community, to have inspectors penetrating into the private apartments of a house at all times and seasons.

On the subject of overcrowding the petitioners are naturally entirely opposed to the Bill. For our own part, we do not see how overcrowding can be prevented until additional house accommodation is provided. We are glad to hear that the Government intend to take one useful step towards opening up new building sites. Hitherto the system pursued in the disposal of crown lands has been to wait until there is an application for a particular lot, when it is put up to auction, but it is considered bad form for any one to bid against the applicant. Instead of waiting for applications a surveyor is to be appointed whose special duty it will be to parcel out lots suitable for building, which will be put up to auction as they are surveyed, and will become subject in fact as well as nominally to free competition. Under the new system it is expected a considerable amount of land will shortly come into the market. Even in the immediate neighbourhood of the town there are no doubt sites which have hitherto escaped the notice of land speculators, but will attract the attention of a professional man whose particular duty it will be to look for them. It is to measures like this, and more especially to schemes like the reclamation of the foreshore and of Causeway Bay, that we must look for relief from over-crowding, rather than to legislative enactments limiting the [illegible] It is stated in the petition that although rents of the houses at East and West Points are slightly lower than those in the centre of the town, these houses are too far from the place where the people do their business, and it is very hard and inconvenient for them to have to walk to and fro in the mornings and evenings. The Land Commission recommended that these districts should be rendered more accessible by the construction of tramways. Certain it is that East and West Points will in future have to be more extensively occupied than they have been. The relief which will be afforded to the central district by the proposed reclamation of the foreshore will be overtaken in a few years by the increase of the population, and unless the Eastern and Western districts be made use of the pressure will be as great as ever. The population is something over two hundred thousand. It is safe to predict that within twenty years, if not much sooner, it will be five hundred thousand. No argument is needed to demonstrate that five hundred thousand people cannot be accommodated in a space that is already overcrowded with two hundred thousand. And, moreover, the centre of the town will be occupied more and more every year by purely business premises, and accommodation for residential purposes will perforce have to be sought elsewhere. It is of no use talking about the hardship of this, for it is inevitable. And with the construction of tramways the hardship on the working classes of having to go to and from their work would not really be great, no greater relatively speaking than it is in London. To attempt, however, to turn people out of their houses by legislative enactment before there are facilities for housing them in the suburbs is altogether impracticable. While, therefore, we do not expect to see the centre of the town continue to be occupied for residence to the extent it has been in the past, as the Chinese apparently do, we entirely concur with them in their protest against the overcrowding clauses.

There are objections urged in the petition to several other sections, namely, those referring to the construction of down pipes, the conditions under which certain works are to be carried on, the connexion of the house drains with the main drains, etc. The objections have a good deal of force, but they refer mostly to matters of detail, and could be dealt with in the Bill which will doubtless be brought forward when the disallowance by Her Majesty of the present measure has been formally notified.

The Penang Gazette of the 23rd ult. says:—A few days ago a party of officers from the Orion, whilst proceeding in a steamer near Mr. Vermont's estate, Province Wellesley, shot an alligator 13 feet in length. Mr. Davids, the successful sportsman, "potted" it in the eye.

A telegram was received in the colony yesterday stating that another fire had occurred in Foochow and that Messrs. Turner and Co.'s bungalow, used as a residence only, had been burned. The fire has been disastrous to Chinese property, but we understand that beyond the damage just mentioned, foreign property has suffered little.

Mr. A. R. Colquhoun, replying to an article in the Economist, sustains his contention that the main object of the annexation of Burmah was to tap the trade of China through the Shan States; that this is essential to the development of Burmah, and that we can neither develop Burmah nor secure Chinese trade and Chinese emigration by internal railways alone.

Professor J. B. Steere, of Unibrigan University, has arrived at Iloilo, and intends to study the fauna and flora of the Philippines, more particularly the birds of the island of Panay. He is accompanied by three pupils. Professor Steere visited the Philippines once before and presented to the Natural History Museum of his University forty new specimens of birds and reptiles.

A Calcutta telegram in the Rangoon Gazette dated the 12th ult., says:—Lieutenant Younghusband, of the King's Dragoon Guards, who accompanied Messrs. James and Fielfern on their trip to Manchuria, has just arrived in India having performed a far more remarkable journey. He has travelled from China to Cashmere overland across Mongolia, a journey which since the days of Marco Polo no European has accomplished.

There has been some trouble in Kinta, Perak, with Chinese Kongsees. The Penang Gazette says "the trouble is not yet over, though the ringleader, for whom a total reward of $2,500 was offered, has been caught. The Kongsees are in a state of ferment, which is difficult to suppress; only a few days ago several police officers were sharp enough to seize a large number of documents, bearing all the signs, &c., belonging to one of the principal secret societies, in a place where the Society's emissaries were about to begin recruiting. In several places the water supply of mines has been cut, and the police are constantly under arms, owing to the night alarms. The flogging at the commencement had a salutary effect, and the hanging of a dozen or two which is shortly to take place will probably keep up the moral effect."

At the Police Court yesterday a large number of cases of hawking without a license and crying in prohibited districts were disposed of. The only case of any importance was that of Tam Achung of no occupation, residing in No. 85, Bonham Strand, who was brought up before Mr. Wodehouse, on remand, on a charge of being in possession of about fifteen taels of prepared opium without being provided with a valid certificate from the Opium Farmer. Mr. Mossop appeared for the defence and Mr. Scrosser, chief excise officer, prosecuted. The essential sum of $1,000, with the alternative of six months in the gaol. A case of breach of gaol regulations was also disposed of. Chung Ang, a prisoner in the gaol, was fined $2 or fourteen days' hard labour for passing a ten-cent piece to another prisoner.

The Bangkok Times of the 21st ult. has an article complaining of the conduct of the Chinese cargo coolies in that port, who frequently indulge in rowdyism and then defy the Police, claiming to be British subjects. The Times says:—"Some months ago a serious attack of this kind was made on the steamer Borneo, and now we learn that last week the British steamer Wyvern had, in its turn, to stand a regular siege down at the Narason Rice Mill. A quarrel ensued—this time among the coolies themselves—and at a moment's notice firewood, coals, and crockery-ware filled the air. The cargo boatmen next charged the vessel to attack the coolies, and of course blood flowed freely, for fellows with three pronged forks, bamboos, sticks, and stones actually fought on deck for fully five minutes, eventually being driven off on to the pier. There they tore down the brickwork near at hand and using their paddy baskets as shields, again charged the steamer and the boatmen still on board, and ended by driving the latter over the side. The battle indeed must have been most sanguinary, and we entirely agree with the captain that such an occurrence was not 'provided for in the charter party,' nor would it be considered of 'no importance' in any other part of the world."

THE ST. GEORGE'S BALL.

The English community may this morning congratulate themselves on having scored a decided success with the Ball given last night at the City Hall. The Scottish residents having this year decided not to give a St. Andrew's Ball, the English at once determined that they would fill the vacancy and permit of their Caledonian "brithers" who have played the part of hosts on so many occasions attending this ball in the character of guests. The task before them was no easy one. St. Andrew's Balls have become a synonym for everything that a Ball should be, and it was of course therefore incumbent that a Ball given in the honor of the English patron saint should equal if not surpass that of St. Andrew. The idea directly it was mooted was taken up warmly. An influential committee was at once formed and subscriptions came in rapidly, and all who were present last night will agree that the greatest praise is due to all concerned for the giving of a Ball the like of which has certainly not been surpassed in Hongkong. The City Hall was most tastefully decorated for the occasion and certainly the Decoration Committee appeared to have spared neither time nor labour in this department. The sole decoration outside the hall was simple, yet effective. It consisted of a representation of a shield with the St. George's cross upon it, the whole being formed of an arrangement of Chinese lanterns. The entrance hall and staircase presented a strikingly effective scene. On either side of the hall, round the pillars were grouped evergreens, while between the pillars were placed brass mortars On each side of the staircase were placed pots of evergreens. The large windows and the whole wall facing the entrance door were covered from ceiling to floor in haise in alternate strips of red and blue. This formed the ground-work. In the centre was a large white shield bearing the St. George's Cross, while on either side were placed smaller shields bearing the three lions rampant, immense Union Jacks drooping over the whole, while above the large shield was placed an immense crown. Below the shields were placed stars and half-moons prettily formed by swords and daggers, while below on the landing were placed a number of evergreens, among which were arranged stacks of arms while in the centre brass-mortars peeping out from among the green leaves gave the necessary finishing touch to the whole. St. George's Hall presented a very brilliant appearance. The walls were decked with flags and shields, while round each of the half-pillars were placed boxes containing flowers from which sprung up a large bush completely hiding the gas brackets, the globes of which were covered to represent red roses. A large mirror at one end of the room facing the sandstand considerably heightened the effect of the scene. On either side of the mirror a bank of evergreens was arranged. Above this and covering the whole wall at that end of the room were placed two gigantic Royal Standards, while between the two, immediately over the mirror, was a large painting representing St. George in the act of slaying the Dragon. Suspended from the chandelier in the centre of the hall was a large bunch of mistletoe. To which member of the committee belongs the credit of this idea is not known, but no gentleman was observed to avail himself during the evening of the opportunity so thoughtfully provided. St. Andrew's Hall and the anti-room were decorated with a few exceptions similarly to St. George's Hall. In St. Andrew's Hall, in place of the mirror at one end, appeared the portrait of the Duke of Edinburgh draped in the Royal Standard and on either side against the wall were spears arranged in the shape of a fan. The room used formed by the help of flags and evergreens and was used as a refreshment room. The verandahs gaily lighted with Chinese lanterns and adorned with banners formed cool and pleasant retiring-rooms, while in one verandah at the back of St. George's Hall, by the assistance of coloured matting a number of little alcoves were formed, in each of which were placed two seats. It seems probable that this idea emanated from the same mind as the one which conceived that of suspending mistletoe in St. George's Hall. If so it must have been gratifying to him to observe that his genius was appreciated. The Dress Circle and floor of the Theatre, prettily decorated with flowers and flags, served as supper rooms, the Governor's table being placed in the centre dress circle opposite to the stage. The Library of the City Hall made a commodious card and smoking room.

His Excellency Sir William des Voeux led off the first quadrille with Mrs. Ackroyd, having for vis-à-vis Hon. E. J. Ackroyd and Miss Cameron.

SUPREME COURT.

6th January.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

BEFORE MR. A. J. LEACH, ACTING PUISNE JUDGE.

PUN ACKUN v. GARFIT.

This was a claim for $5 30 by plaintiff, a chair coolie in the employ of defendant, for wages due.

The defence was that plaintiff had refused to obey the lawful orders of his employer who held that by thus breaking his contract he had forfeited the wages originally due to him.

His Lordship said that defendant would be entitled to succeed if he could prove that no misunderstanding had existed.

Plaintiff said he was employed by defendant at $7 per month. On the 13th December last he left defendant's house about 10.30 p.m. and went to Taipingshan to sleep. About 11 p.m. one of the other chair coolies came for him and told him he was to come back and wash the floor. He went back and did so and defendant who was asleep at the time did not know that he had come back. The next morning defendant spoke to him and told him as he had not washed the floor he could leave. He told him he had done so and asked for his wages, which defendant refused to give him.

By defendant—It was not a floor in the house that I had to wash. It was the yard drain.

Pun Akwai, a chair coolie in the employ of the defendant, said it was he who went and fetched the plaintiff from Taipingshan. Defendant ordered him and some of the other coolies to get some water and wash out the drain. Plaintiff was dismissed because he left the premises. There was no order as to where they were to sleep.

By defendant—You did not order me to fetch plaintiff.

At this point, at the request of the defendant, the case was adjourned till this morning at half-past ten o'clock.

MACAO.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

5th January.

You have already heard of the serious case of cutting and wounding at Dr. Roza's residence; the following are the details:—It appears that on the morning of the 2nd instant Dr. Roza had occasion to reprimand his cook (who had been in his employ for seven years) for not having prepared his morning tea properly. During the Doctor's absence shortly afterwards the cook, fretful at the scolding, found a pretext to have some words with the "boy," and in the heat of the dispute took hold of a chopper and inflicted a severe cut on the boy's head and another in the wrist, almost severing the hand. The boy cried out for help, and a maid servant, named Maria, ran down to see what it was and to stop the noise, when the cook left hold of the boy and went up to Maria at whom he discharged three heavy blows with the chopper making three ugly gashes in the head—one on each side above the ears and the other at the back of the head—another at the back of the neck, and three smaller cuts in the left hand. The larger wounds were about three inches wide. Of the wounds in the hand, one would have cut off her finger but for a gold ring which she wore, which resisted the steel, an indentation being made on it. This took place about 11 a.m., and the noise occasioned brought Messrs. Senna Fernandes and Grades, who live a few doors from Dr. Roza's. They remained in attendance until the arrival of medical assistance and the Police. Maria was immediately attended to by Drs. Gomes da Silva and Tovar de Lemos, who stitched the wounds with pins, whilst the boy was attended by a Chinese doctor, he having refused the services of the Europeans being afraid after seeing the operations performed upon Maria, who was all the time unconscious owing to [illegible] praise for the prompt and able manner in which they attended to the victim, who is now reported to be doing well. The boy is also said to be progressing favourably. The would-be murderer is in the custody of the Police. He was so excited that, nothing daunted by the presence of the constables, he continued to strike Maria until he was secured.

A soirée was given by H. E. the Governor and Srs. Costa at Government House last night, at which a goodly number of ladies and gentlemen were present. The entertainment commenced with an amateur concert under the direction of Dr. Gomes da Silva and the following programme was gone through in an artistic manner by the respective performers:—

1a. PARTE.

La Guardia De Reida Siam, ouverture (orchestra) G. S.
Pincrah, berceuse (soprano) ... Meyerbeer.
Rio Lima, valse (orchestra) G. S.
I Furitani, duetto (soprano e tenor—cōro) ... Bellini.

2a. PARTE.

Amelia, valse (orchestra) G. S.
Ernani, aria (soprano) ... Verdi.
Fausto, duetto (soprano e tenor) ... Gounod.
Rei De Lahore, aria (basso) ... Massenet.
Lucia De Lamermoor, concertante ... Donizetti.

The concert over, dancing was indulged in and kept up with spirit till after two o'clock this morning. H. E. Sr. Roza was among the guests.

The ball in honour of Sr. Roza has also been subscribed for by the Chinese, the Opium Farmer heading the Chinese list with $500. It is said that the Committee intend presenting Sr. Roza with a substantial souvenir, as the amount of subscription far exceeds the estimate of the intended Ball to be given on Sunday night.

LONDON, 15th December.

The International Sugar Bounties Conference, in recording their approval of the report of the Sub-Committee, advocates the adoption of reprisals against such states as will not join the Convention; Britain, however, for her part refuses to impose countervailing duties. Slight, one of the auditors, is thoroughly investigating the matter. Meanwhile some suspensions are reported to have been made.

The Chief Commissioner is now proceeding to Pops to determine on the best means of governing that part of the country; he will go to Myingyan on the 18th.

MANDALAY, 13th December.

Inspector Rind was shot yesterday when attacking dacoits in Ava district. The body was brought into Ngazun.

The description of a Kamschatkan ball by a recent traveller is, like the fishy odour imputed by the author to the ladies who graced it, racy, but rather strong. In one stage of the country dance the order was given to "kiss partners." "I turned a despairing glance on my partner, and my heart sank within me. All hope was gone."

In the life of Darwin just published there is a pleasant anecdote of Darwin and his father. Darwin says, "I had been rather extravagant at Cambridge, and to console my father I said that I should be deuced clever to spend more than my allowance while on board the Beagle." His father answered with a smile, "But they tell me you are very clever." The father found that he had made a very true observation; for when the Beagle returned he was assured that his son would take a place among the leading scientific men of his time. Darwin's career as a naturalist was very nearly cut short by the captain of the Beagle, who, being a disciple of Lavater, could not believe that any young man "with such a nose" could have energy and determination enough for the post of naturalist to the Beagle expedition.

The following are the rules of a club in a small Russian town in the Tcherni District:—1. It is prohibited to enter the club with greased boots. 2. Tradesmen are not allowed to enter the club in their working clothes, which exhale the disagreeable odour of fish, grease, or leather. 3. A dress-coat must be worn at all New Year's or Easter dances. Anyone appearing in a velvet waistcoat or a green necktie is fined one rouble. The fines cover the expenses for the band. 4. The members are especially requested not to use the window curtains as pocket-handkerchiefs. Offenders of this sort will be expelled from the club. 5. During dances members smoking in the ladies' room will be fined 25 copecks, the fines to be expended in toilet powder and eau-de-Cologne for the ladies. 6.
